

2016-08 : Communications

The modern battlefield will be proliferated with unmanned and manned entities. There will be many different communications networks supporting different applications which have to be seamless to work together in efficient ways to create impact to the mission. FSTD is interested to seek innovative ideas and solutions to enhance bandwidth usage and ensure connectivity across this heterogeneous environment to overcome the challenges of spectrum congestion, information security, robustness and resilience for operations.