

2016-12:

Highly Reliable Electronics in Space Environment

This call is for the development of radiation hardened/tolerant electronics that are capable of operating in extreme temperature and radiation environments. We are keen on low power, highly efficient, radiation-hardened processor and data converter technologies, innovative radiation hardened volatile and non-volatile memory technologies as well as packaging technology capable of surviving frequent thermal cycles and tolerant of extreme temperatures.